

Colloquium on Anglo-American Relations and the Vietnam Wars, 1945-75

27-28 March 2007, University of Nottingham, UK

The University of Nottingham will be hosting a colloquium involving many international historians on the theme of Anglo-American relations and the Vietnam Wars, with a range of papers dealing with such issues as British support for the US war effort in Vietnam in the 1960s, differing perceptions of Communist China, and attitudes to French colonialism in Indochina. The colloquium will build on the steady growth of scholarly interest in the international dimensions of the conflicts in Indochina.
