

“From the Great War to the Peace Settlement, 1918-1919:
A Retrospective Evaluation”
An International Conference Sponsored by the International History Institute of Boston University
Boston, Massachusetts
March 23-24, 2007

Friday, March 23: 4th floor, School of Management Building, Boston University

8:30-9:15 a.m. Coffee and rolls, registration

9:15 a.m. Welcome and Introductory Remarks
William R. Keylor
Director, International History Institute

9:30-11:30 a.m.: Long-Term Repercussions of the Peace Settlement of 1919
Chair: Andrew Bacevich (Boston University)
Margaret Macmillan (University of Toronto): Keynote Address:
“Thinking About the Paris Peace Conference in 2007”
William R. Keylor (Boston University), “Have Wilson’s Ideas at the Peace Conference Stood the Test of Time?” Sally Marks (Independent Scholar), “Germany’s Place in the Postwar Order”

11:30 a.m.-1:00 p.m. Buffet lunch for participants

1:00-3:00 p.m. France, Germany, and the New International Order
Chair: David Mayers (Boston University)
Peter Jackson (University of Wales, Aberystwyth), “Muscular Juridical Internationalism: French Conceptions of a ‘Society of Nations’, 1917-1919”
Robert Young (University of Winnipeg), “Dialogues des Sourds:
The Lonely Wars of Ambassador Jules Jusserand at the End of the Great War”
Alan Sharp (University of Ulster), “How Executable Was the Versailles Treaty?”

3:00-3:15 p.m. Coffee Break

3:15-5:15 p.m. Strategies of War-making and Peace-making
Chair: Cathal Nolan (Boston University)
Robert Hanks (Wilfred Laurier University), “‘Je fais la guerre’: Clemenceau and the dynamics of inter-Allied leadership in 1917-18”
Carole Fink (Ohio State University), “The Palestine Question and

the Paris Peace Conference” Erik Goldstein (Boston University), “Versailles as a System”

7:30 p.m. Dinner, 4th floor, School of Management Building, Boston University

Saturday, March 24: Eilts Room, Department of International Relations, 154 Bay State Road, second floor

9:00-9:30 coffee and rolls

9:30-11:30 a.m.

Panel Discussion on the Transition from War to Peace in 1918-1919 and summary of participants works-in-progress.

11:30 Buffet lunch

Participants have reserved rooms for the evenings of March 22 and March 23 at the Hotel Commonwealth, Kenmore Square, Boston, which is within walking distance of both the Boston University School of Management and the Boston University Department of International Relations.